4. Metodología

Course Approach

The course will be organized in a way that provides the students with practical knowledge and hands-on experience which will prepare them to interact successfully with native and non-native speakers of English on a variety of environmental topics. Classroom time will be subdivided into the following parts:

A. Public speaking

Activities to analyze listeners, how to be sensitive to their needs and interests, and how to talk to and with them, not at them. Students will be encouraged to communicate ideas to real people, rather than merely stand up and go through the motions of “giving a speech” Practical activities to analyze the audience, select a topic and specific purpose, devise a central idea, find verbal and visual support material, and design effective introductions and conclusions as well.

B. ESP (English for specific purposes)

Each class period, students in small groups will have to present an article related to topics that have to do with the students’ major. The students have to choose an article related to the topic suggested or any other of their interest. The article has to be approved by the professor and sent or given to the rest of the class a week before the presentation. These presentations must be very dynamic and well-organized. Students are expected to incorporate the principles of public speaking in these demonstrations and prepare a short activity for the group. The day of the presentation, the rest of the class will bring a questionnaire (10 questions including the answers) to be used in a question-answer exchange. This will be a follow-up activity to grasp the content of each article and assimilate the main ideas. The evaluation sheet which will be used to assess these demonstrations, it will be discussed with the students.

C. Grammar and idioms

Weekly review of slang and phrasal verbs from the course anthology. Exercises on the following grammatical structures: past tenses, past perfect tense, would+base verb for past habits, gerunds and infinitives, review of passive voice, reported speech, adverbs, tag questions and third conditional clauses. Any other grammar structure the students want to study or review will be taken into account.

D. Bulletin Boards

Students in groups will prepare a bulletin board periodically to be exhibited to the college community. The topics must be selected from the student-generated list which follows these instructions. Students are expected to be as creative as possible in organizing the visuals and information on the board. The evaluation form and rubrics which will be used to assess the activity will be discussed before the presentation. The day of the oral presentation, students may send invitations in advance to invite other classes, colleagues, or foreign guests. It is recommended to prepare a social interactive activity such as refreshments, goodies, raffles, games, or any other similar activity to engage and motivate the audience.

Possible topics: biodiversity, pre-Colombian cultures, national reality, hotel management, hotel industry, lodges, Costa Rican history, describing specific species, national parks and reserves, recycling, evolution of ecotourism, endangered species, social problems affecting the Costa Rican society, global warming and its consequences, life zones, tourist marketing, lodging in CR, guidelines for being a tourist guide, tourist attractions, taxonomies, the TLC, environmental issues, natural history.

E. Field trip

The field trip will be held on October ___ and it will imply careful, systematic preparation. The goal is for the students to put the language of biodiversity into application in a real context. The destination will be _____. Appropriate guidelines will be provided throughout the course.

I. Responsibilities.

-Because this course meets only once a week, attendance and participation are essential. It is also necessary to arrive on time.

-Avoid eating in class or coming in and out. Take advantage of breaks for that purpose.

- All assignments must be completed ON TIME on the day assigned. No make-up assignments or quizzes will be accepted.
- 6 hours per week is the minimum amount of time that should be spent on reviewing and practicing material covered in class and carrying out assignments. Because this course will be moving at a rapid pace, it will be very important that you refer to the readings and classroom materials to reinforce learning.
- No Spanish will be allowed in class. Students should take advantage of the limited opportunity they have to express themselves in a second language once a week.
